

Editor's Comment:

The article covers interesting aspects of natural extracts used as antimicrobial agents.

The quality of language is good, same as manuscript construction.

The Introduction part concerning gut microbiom should be supported with more actual references, as it is commonly discussed subject currently, and the amount of knowledge in this field growing rapidly.

There was no negative control in the experiment.

I would like to see representative photodocumentation from inhibitory zone tests in the article or at least provided to the Editor.

Please chcek the graphs descriptions - there are 4 bars and only 3 are marked - the colors on Fig 1 must be more different, and instead of colors AUthors can used b&w different patterns.

Fig.2 no statistical differences marked - and for sure the values differ more then on Fig1.

In conclusion - the manuscript still needs some Authors' work prior publication.
