Compulsory REVISION comments	Academic Fraud in Online System During the Covid-19 Pandemic! Yes, it might happen! His work is notable one. Using Crone Bach alpha and composite reliability for this survey is good. In our Tamil, there is a proverb " Payir paakkaama kettuchu, kadan ketkaama kettuchu" which means, the crop is bad without looking, our money (lent to someone) is lost without asking! Like that, there is no regulation and invigilation all are going to bad. During the Covid-19 Pandemic, we cannot invigilate anyone easily! It will lay a road for fraud. In this survey, Crone Bach alpha and composite reliability says, pressure, rationalization, opportunity and capability are strong impetus for students to commit fraud during the educational process.
Minor REVISION comments	Crone Bach alpha and composite reliability confirmed our hypothesis, no need for t-test... but for the hypothesis works, t-test is good.
Optional/General comments	In this period, there is no way to monitor all, so we have to accept online education process
