Compulsory REVISION comments	The authors should refer to the comments in the manuscripts In general, this study provides an evidence for the contamination of groundwater with probable antibiotic resistant Gram-negative bacteria in a community. The study was well designed to address the topic but the manuscript in general requires a serious major revision (see comments in the manuscripts) for it to be accepted. In addition, the authors should endeavour to proof read their manuscripts before sending it for publication as incomplete sentences were observed which could be a result of copy and paste. The references were poor cited as there was no correlation between the cited references in the text and the bibliography sections. Lastly, the spellings and grammar need to be checked thoroughly.
